Our Lord Jesus Christ, King of the Universe

The Lord Jesus is our shepherd. At the end, at his coming, he will hand over the kingdom to his Father. He will "judge between one sheep and another, between rams and goats", between those who have lived their lives for others, and those who have lived for themselves.

Reflection

November 22, 2026
Our Lord Jesus Christ, King of the Universe

As the liturgical year draws to a close, we celebrate the Solemnity of Our Lord Jesus Christ, King of the Universe. Today's readings present us with a remarkable picture of our King. He reigns with all authority, yet He lovingly cares for His people, especially those most in need.

How do we honor such a King? By offering Him our lives through faithful stewardship.

In today's Gospel, Jesus describes the final judgment. He tells us that the measure of our lives will not be worldly success or personal achievement. Instead, He points to the ordinary acts of mercy that reveal a heart transformed by His love: feeding the hungry, welcoming the stranger, caring for the sick, and visiting the imprisoned.

Then He gives these unforgettable words: "Whatever you did for one of the least brothers of mine, you did for me."

As Christian stewards, we recognize Christ not only in the Eucharist but also in those He places before us each day. The more faithfully we love and serve Him in others, the more our lives reflect the heart of our King.

As the liturgical year draws to a close, we celebrate the Solemnity of Our Lord Jesus Christ, King of the Universe. Today's readings present us with a remarkable picture of our King. He reigns with all authority, yet He lovingly cares for His people, especially those most in need.

How do we honor such a King? By offering Him our lives through faithful stewardship.

Our First Reading from Ezekiel presents Christ as the Good Shepherd who personally seeks out His sheep. "I myself will look after and tend my sheep... The lost I will seek out, the strayed I will bring back, the injured I will bind up, the sick I will heal." His love is personal, faithful, and relentless. He is not a distant ruler who simply issues commands. He knows His people, pursues those who have wandered, and gently restores those who are hurting.

As Christian stewards, we are called to imitate the heart of our Shepherd King. Our response begins with gratitude for His loving care, but it does not end there. We are also called to reflect that same compassion in the way we treat those around us. Stewardship is more than managing resources well. It is allowing Christ's love to shape our relationships, our priorities, and the way we serve others.

St. Paul reminds us in today's Second Reading that this Good Shepherd is also the King of all creation. Every authority ultimately belongs to Him, and one day He will bring all things to their fulfillment, even conquering death itself. Every breath we take and every blessing we enjoy comes from Him. As Christian stewards, we gladly place every part of our lives under His loving kingship, recognizing that everything we have has first been entrusted to us by Him.

In today's Gospel, Jesus describes the final judgment. The standard He gives is striking. He does not speak of wealth, influence, popularity, or worldly accomplishments. Instead, He asks whether we recognized Him in those who were hungry, thirsty, lonely, sick, or imprisoned.

"Whatever you did for one of the least brothers of mine, you did for me."

Those words remind us that every act of love offered in Christ's name matters. The small acts of kindness that often go unnoticed by the world are never overlooked by our King. A visit to someone who is homebound, a meal shared with a family in need, a listening ear for someone carrying a heavy burden, or a quiet act of generosity offered without recognition all become opportunities to serve Christ Himself.

These are the priorities of our King, and they must become our priorities as well.

The stewardship way of life forms our hearts to recognize Christ not only in the Eucharist but also in the people He places before us each day. It teaches us to receive God's gifts with gratitude, to cultivate them responsibly, and to place them at the service of others out of love for Him.

As we faithfully live this way each day, we prepare not only for the moment we will stand before our King, but also to experience His Kingdom here and now. May we gladly place every aspect of our lives under the reign of Christ the King so that one day we may rejoice forever in His heavenly Kingdom.
